Types of Student Projects

Independent Study:

A student-written academic paper, typically individually authored but potentially including co-authored work with the faculty member.

Supervised Research:

Work on a faculty member's project in which the student makes a substantial original / distinct scholarly contribution; ordinarily will include significant written output by a student, but not in the form or of the substance of an Independent Study.

Research Assistant:

Work on a faculty member's project of a more traditional RA type, not having the characteristics of Supervised Research.
