12 PROCEEDINGS

13 MR. PRICKETT: Good morning, your Honor.

14 Before we begin, may I present to the 15 Court, and move their admission pro hac vice, my 16 colleagues in this case, Ivan Irwin and Brett Ringle, 17 of the Shank, Irwin firm of Dallas, Texas.

18 THE COURT: You are admitted, gentlemen,
19 for the purposes of this action.

20 MR. IRWIN: Thank you, your Honor.

21 MR. RINGLE: Thank you.

22 MR. PAYSON: May I make some introduction
23 too, Mr. Prickett?

24 MR. PRICKETT: Yes.

 MR. PAYSON: Good morning, Chancellor.

 I would like to introduce to the Court,

1 and move the admission of pro hac vice, Mr. Thomas
2 Morsch of the firm of Sidley & Austin, a member of the 3 Illinois Bar, and I would also like to introduce to 4 the Court Mr. William Moore, who is general counsel and 5 secretary of Trans Union Corporation. I do not move 6 Mr. Moore's admission.

7 THE COURT: You are admitted, sir, and 8 Mr. Moore is welcome.

9 MR. MORSCH: Thank you, your Honor.

10 MR. MOORE: Thank you.

11 THE COURT: You may divide your time,
12 Mr. Prickett, roughly a half hour each.

13 MR. PRICKETT: Is the total time that 14 the Court is allotting to both sides a half an hour 15 each?

16 THE COURT: Well, not exactly, but 17 thereabouts.

18 MR. PRICKETT: Yes, sir.

19 THE COURT: I don't expect to go on 20 until 1:00 or 1:30.

21 MR. PRICKETT: I would then have from 22 11:00 until 11:30, is that correct, your Honor?

23 THE COURT: Yes.

24 MR. PRICKETT: Yes, sir.

1 May it please the Court: Let me first 2 make clear what is before the Court and what is not 3 before the Court.

4 This is not the time when the Court is 5 being asked to decide a motion for class certification, 6 nor is it a time when the Court is being asked to 7 decide whether to grant a motion to dismiss as to 8 certain defendants.

9 This is the time when the Court is asked 10 to decide the plaintiff's motion for the issuance of 11 a preliminary injunction.

12 In deciding how to present this motion 13 I was called by an ordinary stockholder last night who 14 asked me to explain to him what the case was about and 15 what he was being asked to vote on in connection with 16 the February 10th meeting. He asked me for a brief 17 recitation of the plain facts of the matter, and this 18 is what I told him:

19 "Sir, the story starts in the summer of 20 1980. At that time your company's board received a 21 report from management with a five-year forecast. This 22 report showed that the prospects for TU from 1981 to 23 1985 were far brighter than they had ever been before.
24 In this document your company was described as an engine

1 of cash. The management told the board that in this 2 period TU would generate about $250,000,000 of cash, 3 and that this cash could be used to buy your stock, to 4 pay you and your fellow stockholders double or triple 5 the dividends that you had been receiving, or it could 6 be used for TU to buy other companies that would produce 7 even more cash and earnings for you and your fellow 8 stockholders. In short, this report stated that the 9 company was on the verge of its greatest economic 10 prosperity."

11 The stockholder then said, "Well, I was 12 never told this. I was told that the board recommended 13 selling the company."

14 "Well," I replied, "it's hard to believe 15 what the chairman and the board did after this glowing 16 report. In point of fact, on Saturday, September 13th, 17 the president and chief executive officer, Mr. Van Gorko 18 went to his good friend, Mr. Jay Pritzker, and entered 19 into a secret agreement that was firmed up on Friday, 20 September 19th, for a cash-out merger of the company 21 including the sale of your stock and the stock of your 22 fellow stockholders for $55 a share."

23 Stockholder: "Why did he suddenly and 24 secretly do this?"

1 Answer: "He has never fully explained
2 why he did it, but we did uncover the fact that he 3 was worried that a group of management might themselves 4 try to buy the company from the shareholders.
5 Mr. Van Gorkom does tell us that he went to Mr. Pritzke
6 for advice on how to sell the company, but at the same 7 time he knew that Mr. Pritzker was not in a position 8 to offer a tax-free exchange, but Mr. Van Gorkom never 9 looked any other place before going to Mr. Pritzker.
10 Mr. Van Gorkom, in addition, had without consultation 11 with the management of TU or its investment bankers 12 selected $55 as the price at which your shares and the 13 shares of your fellow stockholders would be sold. He 14 has never explained how he selected that price. It was 15 simply his own private judgment. He never negotiated 16 the price with Mr. Pritzker, and Mr. Pritzker readily 17 agreed that $55 was a good price, and enthusiastically 18 and speedily accepted it."

19 Stockholder: "I would have expected him
20 to have gotten a tax-free deal so as to avoid capital
21 gains for me and my fellow stockholders, and I 22 certainly would have expected him to negotiate long 23 and hard on any proposed cash price."

24 "Well, sir, the answer is that

1 Mr. Van Gorkom did more than that. He prepared a 2 document from the confidential TU financial results,
3 and presented it to Mr. Pritzker, and this document 4 showed Mr. Pritzker that Mr. Pritzker could expect to 5 pay back the borrowings that Mr. Pritzker would have to 6 make in the amount of $490,000,000 in about five years 7 from the earnings of your company."

8 Stockholder: "You mean Mr. Van Gorkom
9 showed Mr. Pritzker how he could buy the company mostly 10 with our money?"

11 Answer: "That's right. Mr. Pritzker
12 basically accepted with enthusiasm the deal that 13 Mr. Van Gorkom was presenting to him, but before he 14 made his final acceptance privately to Mr. Van Gorkom, 15 he, Pritzker, took the time to get advice from his own 16 staff and from his bankers. But Mr. Van Gorkom did 17 more than that. He made it even easier. He provided 18 Mr. Peterson, TU's controller, to provide further 19 confidential information to Mr. Pritzker, and even 20 made Mr. Carpenter of the Boston Consulting Group
21 available to Mr. Pritzker."

22 Stockholder: "So Mr. Van Gorkom gave 23 Mr. Pritzker an inside look at our company including 24 the details of the five-year forecast which has never

1 been disclosed to us?"

2 Answer: "That's correct. But Mr. Pritzker
3 got even more than that. He demanded and got the 4 right to buy 1,000,000 shares of TU stock at 38. There 5 were no negotiations on the price, $38 being about the 6 price --"

7 THE COURT: That price was above the 8 market slightly.

9 MR. PRICKETT: By pennies, sir. By 10 pennies. But they had just agreed that the value of 11 the shares of TU --

12 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Pritzker could 13 have gone into the market and bought shares, which is 14 usually done when there is a proposed merger imminent.

15 MR. PRICKETT: He certainly could have,
16 but here Mr. Van Gorkom gave him a million shares at 17 $38 when he had just concluded --

18 THE COURT: That's not exactly a gift.

19 MR. PRICKETT: No. It's a gift in the 20 form of a sale at 38 when the stock is going to be 21 trading at 55 as soon as this deal is announced, so 22 it's not a gift of $38 per share, but it's a gift of 23 the difference between 55 and 38.

24 The stockholder asked: "Why didn't

1 Mr. Van Gorkom, if he was going to sell a million
2 shares to Pritzker, get a better price?"

3 "The answer, sir, is that they had 4 agreed that $55 was a fair price for your stock, but 5 Mr. Van Gorkom simply never thought of that, and just 6 agreed to Mr. Pritzker's demand for a million shares 7 at $38."

8 Stockholder: "What was the reason for 9 this?"

10 Answer: "Mr. Pritzker demanded it, and 11 Mr. Van Gorkom agreed."

12 "Well, why was this done?"

13 Answer: "Well, it was a guarantee to 14 Mr. Pritzker that he would have a profit of at least 15 $17,000,000 if somebody else made a better bid."

16 Stockholder: "So it was a no-lose 17 situation for Mr. Pritzker?" And my answer was, "That' 18 right."

19 Stockholder: "Well, what did my board 20 of directors do about all this?"

21 Answer: "They approved it. Mr. Van Gork 22 kept it entirely secret from them, and then he called 23 a special meeting on a Saturday morning for them to be 24 informed about it and consider it. He never advised

1 them in advance of what the meeting was about, nor gave 2 them any documents such as he had given to Mr. Pritzker 3 Mr. Van Gorkom also summoned the senior management who 4 knew nothing about the matter, and told them of the 5 Pritzker deal just before the board meeting. The 6 senior management was opposed, thought the whole deal 7 was a bad one, and that the price was too low, but the 8 board was never told that senior management opposed 9 the proposal, the Pritzker proposal.

10 "Mr. Van Gorkom had, of course, gotten no 11 authorization or direction from the board to do what he 12 privately had done, and the board had no knowledge 13 before the meeting at all of the matter. Mr. Pritzker
14 demanded, and Mr. Van Gorkom agreed, that it was a 15 take-it-or-leave-it proposition, so that the board was 16 told at the meeting that they had to accept it at that 17 very meeting, or certainly before the weekend, or 18 Mr. Pritzker would withdraw it.

19 "Now, Mr. Van Gorkom was the only person 20 who spoke at the meeting at all. In fact he was the 21 only one, really, who knew anything about it."

22 The stockholder said: "But the board 23 represents the stockholders."

24 Answer: "Wrong in this case. Dead wrong

1 The board consisted of employees of TU all of whom were 2 nominated by Mr. Van Gorkom to the board, and all of 3 whom, as I say, were employees and dependent on their 4 jobs and futures to Mr. Van Gorkom."

5 Stockholder: "Well, what about the out-6 side directors?"

7 Answer: "Well, all of the outside 8 directors were business friends and social friends of 9 Mr. Pritzker whom he had also nominated and had elected 10 to his board. Thus he controlled the board and 11 dominated it, and they had never voted a single 12 proposition down that Mr. Van Gorkom had ever made with 13 one exception. Ten years before Mr. Van Gorkom had 14 tried precisely the same thing. He tried to sell the 15 company to Litton. There the board had a month or six 16 weeks to consider it, and when they had time to consider 17 it, they indicated that they would oppose it, and 18 Mr. Van Gorkom withdrew it. So in this prior example 19 where they had time to consider it, they turned it down 20 but other than that, this dominated board consisting 21 of employees and friends of Mr. Van Gorkom had never 22 opposed anything that he ever wanted done."

23 THE COURT: You said they were friends of 24 Mr. Pritzker. I think you misstated yourself.

1 MR. PRICKETT: That's right. I did
2 indeed, your Honor. And I've got to be fair. The 3 board members were not friends of Pritzker's --

4 THE COURT: The only thing in common
5 between Mr. Pritzker and any of the directors is that 6 apparently Mr. Pritzker and Mr. Van Gorkom were both 7 interested in opera.

8 MR. PRICKETT: Yes, I think that's 9 correct, and perhaps some of the others were interested 10 in opera. But I don't represent to you that the out-11 side board members were friends or business associates 12 of Mr. Pritzker. What I do say is that the outside 13 members of the board were all business and social 14 friends of Mr. Van Gorkom. They all found their way 15 onto the board because he selected them, he nominated 16 them, and they were approved.

17 Now, getting back to the meeting of the 18 board, it was Saturday noon. There was nobody present 19 at that meeting except the directors and a few members
20 of management. Salomon Brothers, who had been TU's 21 investment bankers, were not asked to the meeting, were 22 not told about it, had issued no advice of any kind on 23 what might be the correct way to handle the future of 24 TU if it were to be merged, or who would be a proper

1 party, and they were not asked, and the board never 2 asked that Salomon Brothers be consulted.

3 There was no formal inquiry by the board
4 as to how management, which had just been told about 5 this deal, felt about it, and it was not disclosed in 6 fact that they just really had learned about it just 7 before.

8 I said that there were members of manage-9 ment present. One in particular was there. He was 10 Mr. Don Romans, the vice president, financial, of TU.
11 He had previously said at an informal meeting, not in 12 the context of any proposal, that he thought the stock 13 was worth between $50 and $60. He had never made any 14 study, so far as we can tell, of the value of the stock 15 for merger purposes, and at the meeting they turned to 16 him and said, "Mr. Romans, what do you think?" He had 17 had no time to think about it. He had had no studies 18 made, and all he could say was at that point he could 19 not say that $55 was unfair. He said that he thought 20 at the board meeting the range was between 50 and 60, 21 or 55 and 65, depending on whose testimony you believe, 22 because some directors said he said 55 and 65, and other 23 said he said 50 to 60. All he could say was that it 24 wasn't unfair.

1 The stockholder said: "Well, what do
2 the minutes say about this very important meeting?"
3 And I had to say that the minutes don't say anything.
4 "There's only one line in the whole book that refers 5 to this, and it says, 'after discussion it was approved,' 6 and then there were eight specific resolutions."

7 It is known from the testimony that's 8 been taken in this case that no director suggested that 9 any amount of time be taken to consider this. It was 10 affirmatively decided that they would not consult an 11 investment banker such as Salomon Brothers or the 12 Boston Consulting Group who had been retained at large 13 expense to advise the company. And there was no inquiry 14 as to the availability of a tax-free merger, though the 15 board knew to a man that the Pritzker proposal would 16 involve heavy capital gains for each and every stock-17 holder.

18 "Well," the stockholder said, "how long 19 did this meeting take?" And the reply was that the 20 whole meeting including the presentation by Mr. Van Gorkom 21 took about two hours on a Saturday afternoon. The 22 directors never even read the merger documents. None 23 of them did. One of them may have skimmed it.

24 The stockholder said: "Did anybody stick

1 up for the stockholders at that meeting?" And the 2 answer had to be, "No, nobody did. There was simply a 3 motion that the proposal that Van Gorkom had put 4 together and agreed to be approved, and so there was 5 an oral vote of 'aye', and it turned out later that one 6 man, Mr. Bonser, an employee, didn't have the guts to 7 stand up and say he didn't approve it. He just stood 8 silent."

9 The stockholder said: "Well, did the 10 board do anything to protect my rights," and the answer 11 had to be, "Well, as Mr. Van Gorkom presented the 12 Pritzker deal, it prevented anybody from making another 13 bid for TU, so the board suggested that their approval
14 be conditioned on Mr. Van Gorkom obtaining the right 15 from Mr. Pritzker to solicit other bids. So 16 Mr. Pritzker was approached, and he agreed graciously 17 to allow TU not to solicit bids, but to be allowed to 18 receive bids, and they were also allowed to get the 19 information that had been made so freely available to 20 Pritzker voluntarily by Van Gorkom."

21 "Well," the stockholder said, "what 22 happened after that?" I said, "Senior management, 23 having a chance to consider what Mr. Van Gorkom had 24 done and its full implications, to a man opposed the

1 proposal, and said they were going to resign if this 2 deal went through. Faced with this, Mr. Van Gorkom
3 didn't consult the board. He again went privately to 4 Mr. Pritzker and negotiated another deal, and this deal 5 was that TU would have the right to go out for the 6 first time now and solicit other bids."

7 Now, I'll get back to the conditions on 8 that, but anyway, the board was reassembled, and 9 Mr. Van Gorkom said Mr. Pritzker has gractiously agreed 10 to amend the deal that we make so that we can now go 11 out for the first time and solicit bids. Of course by 12 that time Mr. Pritzker had his financing lined up.
13 Mr. Pritzker had begun to clear the regulatory hurdles, 14 and of course he was in a position now to go forward 15 with his deal. He had a big head start, and he had 16 a headlock on this deal, so he could say sure, go out 17 and solicit if you want, but there were conditions 18 put on that that made it impossible for anybody else 19 effectively to make a bid.

20 The right of anybody else to make a bid 21 was conditional on two things. They could only have 22 two conditions. One, they only had an out if the 23 stockholders voted it down, or if it was enjoined.
24 They couldn't put in a condition such as the normal

1 conditions in a bid of this size; warranties, representa
2 tions, changes, all of the things that Mr. Pritzker
3 already had in his bid. So there was that problem.

4 The second thing was, though the Pritzker 5 proposal was in place, there was only effectively from 6 October 30th through December 31st for somebody to put 7 the bid in. Salomon Brothers, which, as I say, had 8 never been consulted, and incidentally has never given 9 an opinion on the fairness of the price, was brought in 10 at that point to help TU. Salomon Brothers extracted 11 $500,000 as the price of their service to make a two-12 month search, and they say we contacted a hundred 13 companies, and we did this, and we did that, but they 14 only had 60 days in which to do it, and TU was a 15 special kind of a company, and there were restrictions 16 on the companies that could utilize TU's advantages.

17 Salomon Brothers went out, and they have 18 a huge list of a hundred of the 500 Fortune companies, 19 but they never got anything, and so we didn't get any-20 thing out of the $500,000 that was then spent for 21 Salomon Brothers to make a search. They never produced 22 an offer.

23 THE COURT: If they had produced an offer 24 and the thing had been consummated, Salomon would have

1 received $2,500,000?

2 MR. PRICKETT: Yes. They would get a cut
3 of the deal. But if they didn't produce anybody, they 4 were going to get $500,000, and they were sent off on 5 a mission impossible, but they were going to get 6 $500,000 for their trouble.

7 Now let me turn to the KKR deal.

8 THE COURT: You've gone about 25 minutes 9 now.

10 MR. PRICKETT: I recognize that, sir.

11 As I say, the inception of all this was 12 due to the threat of a KKR deal. What happened? There 13 was one offer produced, and it was through the KKR 14 group, but Mr. Van Gorkom effectively throttled that 15 deal. Mr. Johnson, one of his outside directors, said 16 oh, it wasn't even worth looking into, though in fact 17 $60 was offered by KKR conditioned only on getting the 18 financing. They never pursued that. They never 19 offered the KKR group the $38 deal that the Pritzkers 20 had gotten. They just didn't want that to happen, and 21 they never referred it to Salomon Brothers to follow 22 up on.

23 There was one party that was really
24 interested: GE, one of the giants in this country,

1 and they were prepared to make an offer of $57.50 in 2 stock, a cash-free deal, or $60 in cash. They looked a 3 it, and then they withdrew. They said, according to 4 Mr. Van Gorkom -- and I've never talked to GE, so I
5 don't know what they say -- but Mr. Van Gorkom says 6 they didn't want to buy Trans Union, but he was forced 7 to admit that they didn't want to get in a bidding war 8 with the Pritzkers, so that the Pritzker deal had 9 scared off a giant like GE. They didn't want to get in 10 a bidding war with them. Why? Because the Pritzkers
11 were there. They had a deal. And anyone who wanted 12 to make a deal for this had to buy a million shares
13 that now belonged to the Pritzkers at $38, and if you 14 got in a bidding war you had to spend hundred cent
15 dollars in place of the Pritzkers who spent 92-cent
16 dollars. So GE, the only real prospect, backed off, 17 and that was because this improvident deal had been 18 made.

19 Now, my stockholder said: "Well, I got 20 a proxy statement that didn't tell me anything about 21 what you're telling me. It just said the board was 22 in favor of this." I said, "Well, when all of this 23 came out in the lawsuit the board was assembled, it 24 reviewed all of the things that had come out in the

1 lawsuit, and having reviewed all of those things, they 2 said we've considered all this, and we ratify our own 3 inaction before, and we still recommend it."

4 Now, then they sent out another proxy
5 statement, and the stockholder said, "You mean the 6 proxy statement that came out on Monday and that I got 7 yesterday?"

8 Answer: "That's precisely right. On 9 Monday they met, and they sent out a proxy statement, 10 and in this proxy statement there was a recitation of 11 everything that has come out in this lawsuit and the 12 attempt of the board to say we ratify everything we 13 didn't do, and we now recommend it."

14 Now, this is not an updating proxy 15 statement. It is a completely new proxy statement, and 16 it is an attempt at the last minute by this board to 17 attempt to convince the Court that it has looked at the 18 deal, it has shopped the deal, and it is a good deal, 19 but it is not a complete disclosure, and the proxy
20 statement is fatally defective in that it is not timely.
21 Delaware law requires 20 days notice so that the stock-22 holders at least have the time to consider what they 23 are being asked to vote on, and the proxy statement, 24 which is incomplete as shown in our brief, is not even

1 timely.

2 THE COURT: Well, Section 251 of Title 8
3 -- 251(c) refers to the agreement being furnished to 4 the stockholders.

5 MR. PRICKETT: Well, they are entitled
6 at the time they get the agreement to get the complete 7 information. You can't send out a proxy statement with 8 completely new information two days before the meeting 9 and say we've now informed the stockholders, and they 10 are to vote in two days. So that the supplementary 11 proxy statement, which is in fact a new proxy statement
12 is not timely under Delaware law.

13 Now, the stockholder asked me: "What 14 will the Delaware courts do faced with this situation," 15 and I said, "Well, the Court of Chancery has always 16 considered one of its duties as protecting stockholders 17 They are the owners of the corporation, and they require 18 on the part of management and the board complete candor 19 and fair dealing."

20 I said, "What has happened here, I think 21 it's cumulatively wrong, and what is attempted to be 22 done is the manipulation of corporate machinery; that 23 is, the assembling of a board and a rubber stamping, 24 or a bootstrap attempt at a last minute meeting to cure

1 what has now been established through this lawsuit.
2 They haven't given 20 days notice. They haven't made 3 complete disclosure."

4 In point of fact, the Wall Street Journal
5 has been more helpful to the stockholders in knowing 6 what's going on in this situation than the proxy
7 statements of the management. That's where we really 8 learn what's going on.

9 Now, there has been no considered
10 judgment by the directors of the basic transaction.
11 Furthermore, this deal is unfair to the stockholders.
12 There is no fairness opinion even from Salomon Brothers 13 who were paid $500,000, that suggests that 55 is fair.
14 There is a report before the Court -- it's uncontradict
15 -- by the financial analyst firm of Duff and Phelps.
16 Time precludes me from reviewing that report, but it's 17 uncontradicted, and it shows that in the first place, 18 the best interests of the stockholders would be served 19 by having this merger terminated so that they could 20 enjoy rather than the Pritzkers what the future of 21 TU holds. That is, here on the verge of this tremendou
22 expansion, this huge stream of cash, the best thing 23 for them to do would be to have the merger called off, 24 and have the money paid out in dividends, or have another

1 company bought, or have the company rebuy their stock.
2 They have been stockholders for years, and the manage-3 ment says that the stock has never fairly reflected the 4 price. Now the company has millions of dollars in 5 prospects. Let them buy the stock back up again, or 6 go out and buy other companies for the benefit. But 7 to sell this company in a taxable deal for the stock-
8 holders is manifestly unfair.

9 Now, there are two other points that I
10 will touch on, and then I'll conclude:

11 It is suggested in an attempt to drag 12 this thing over to a class certification question that 13 Mr. Smith, the plaintiff, is not interested in this 14 case. That is totally incorrect. Mr. Smith, like 15 every other stockholder who knows what's going on, is 16 opposed to this deal, and if they were fairly told 17 what I've told the Court today, they would vote to a 18 man against it because it's against their interests.
19 But if there is to be a merger, he wants a tax-free 20 merger. He doesn't want to give away everything he 21 gets in capital gains. But if there's going to be a 22 cash merger, at least he wants fair value for his 23 shares. He doesn't want them secretly traded on a 24 Sunday to a friend of Mr. Van Gorkom.

1 Now, the last person I come to is 2 Mr. Pritzker. Mr. Pritzker has submitted an affidavit
3 and I won't touch on the fact that the affidavit is 4 signed, or the details of that, but it's perfectly 5 clear that Mr. Pritzker wants this deal so bad he can 6 taste it. He threatens the Court. He says if you
7 don't approve this, I'll go away, and this is a precise 8 what he did to the board. He says I'll pick up my 9 marbles and I'll go away, and therefore, you ought not 10 to enjoin it because I will go away. But he doesn't 11 quite say that in his affidavit. He says he might go 12 away. Personally we doubt that he will go away, but 13 it would be in the best interests of the stockholders
14 if he would go away, and then TU could take the time
15 and consider what is best for its stockholders. Is it 16 best to double or triple the dividend, and have the 17 stock reflect that this company is so rich it doesn't 18 know what to do with all its money? Would it be best 19 to acquire some companies? Would it be best to buy 20 back some of the stock?

21 Now, let's suppose Mr. Pritzker does go 22 away, and we don't think he will, but if he does, what 23 will happen? GE has said it's not going to get in a 24 bidding war with Mr. Pritzker, but if he goes away and

1 the decks are cleared, then TU can take its time and 2 take a look, can solicit GE, can solicit KKR, can 3 solicit Genstar that we now know about from the Wall
4 Street Journal, and get a decent offer.

5 We suggest that the Court in Thomas vs.
6 Kempner did precisely that. It said the management has 7 improvidently gotten itself into a situation where there
8 is no out for it. And in the contract that they signed 9 Pritzker can walk away. He has an out if there is 10 litigation, but the management has none. They have no 11 choice, so that the stockholders have been gotten into 12 a situation where the management can't walk away from 13 this deal. It has no litigation out. There are better 14 offers. There are alternatives, and only the Court can 15 protect the stockholders.

16 It is for this reason that we come before 17 the Court and suggest that if there was ever a case
18 where the Court of Chancery exercised its powers
19 properly to protect stockholders in a Delaware corpo-20 ration from what their board, and particularly their 21 chief executive officer, has done, this is the case, 22 and therefore we ask that the Court exercise its 23 powers, and enjoin the meeting of stockholders, and 24 enjoin the consummation of this disastrous merger.

1 Thank you, your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Prickett.

3 Mr. Payson.

4 MR. PAYSON: Thank you, Chancellor.

5 THE COURT: Have the defendants some way
6 of dividing their time?

7 MR. PAYSON: Yes, your Honor. In light
8 of the time which Mr. Prickett took, I would propose 9 to take 15 to 20 minutes, and would ask the Court's 10 indulgence to hear Mr. Sparks for approximately the 11 same time.

12 THE COURT: Very well.

13 MR. PAYSON: Chancellor, I was working on 14 a brief yesterday, and didn't really have time to 15 focus on Mr. Prickett's brief until last night. I 16 enjoyed it very much, as I enjoyed his argument today, 17 because frankly, I enjoy good fiction.

18 The characters in a good work of fiction
19 are three or fourfold. They generally start with a 20 villain. The villain in this case, according to 21 Mr. Prickett, is Mr. Van Gorkom surrounded by his 22 cronies, the remaining members of the board of Trans 23 Union; Mr. Van Gorkom who in July at a meeting of the 24 board of directors saw and discussed various financial

1 projections, who at a meeting in August with the rest
2 of the directors saw the results of a lengthy study
3 from the Boston Consulting Group, who thereafter 4 decided after hearing from internal management that 5 the shares of his company might be worth $50 to $60 a 6 share, that the best way for the stockholders of his 7 company to realize the approximate value of the company
8 was for him to propose a merger with Jay Pritzker.

9 Mr. Van Gorkom personally owns approxi-
10 mately 60,000 shares of Trans Union common stock, and 11 the remaining inside directors own approximately 12 52,000 shares more. If they honestly believe that 13 this company could be sold for approximately $5 more a 14 share, why on January 26th of this year, after having 15 a complete presentation by counsel of Mr. Prickett's 16 argument concerning the facts and the alleged lack of 17 disclosures, vote in favor once again of a proposal
18 which would have cost them almost $600,000 individually
19 Why would the outside directors who, after hearing all 20 of the advice from counsel at this meeting and the 21 parade of horrors as they are outlined in detail in 22 Mr. Moore's affidavit, why would they continue to 23 recommend that the stockholders approve this merger 24 when they were specifically advised that they didn't

1 have to make any recommendation? They were advised
2 you can tell the shareholders we don't know what's fair 3 but since it's such a huge premium over the pre-4 announcement market price, you, the shareholders, should 5 decide the issue. Those are the villains, your Honor.

6 The innocent victims are usually portrayed 7 in a fictional piece of work, and here we have the 8 innocent victims, the shareholders. The shareholders 9 who have the chance to receive approximately $18 a 10 share more than that at which the market has recently 11 valued their stock. That, your Honor, represents a 12 total of more than $222,000,000.

13 In most works of good fiction there is 14 some evil conspirator, the Svengali-like figure who 15 appears throughout a John LeCarre book, and here 16 comes Mr. Pritzker. Mr. Pritzker, who was willing to 17 pay $726,000,000 for a company which the market had 18 valued at $466,000,000, almost $300,000,000 more than 19 the marketplace had determined was the value of this 20 company. This is the same Svengali-like figure who 21 agreed to amend the merger documents so as to permit 22 the company to go out and solicit bids from interested 23 people, and that those bids would be available to be 24 received by the companies after affirmative solicitation

1 for some three or four months; Salomon Brothers retained
2 to test the market by the company, paid a substantial 3 amount to find a bidder, but to be paid significantly 4 more if a bidder were to be found.

5 THE COURT: Salomon Brothers were not 6 asked to evaluate the Pritzker offer actually.

7 MR. PAYSON: That's correct. They were 8 never asked for a fairness opinion.

9 We then come to the hero, the man who 10 comes in on the white stallion, one Alden Smith who 11 because of his own personal tax situation may well 12 prefer to see the value of Trans Union stock decline, 13 and he's the one who seeks to prevent his fellow share-14 holders from deciding whether they want the substantial 15 premium over market which Mr. Pritzker has offered.

16 This case has become a disclosure case, 17 your Honor. It is not a Thomas vs. Kempner case. As 18 your Honor will recall, you decided that case and 19 granted the temporary restraining order. As you also 20 know, I was in the case, so that we both know that 21 there were competing offers before the shareholders.
22 They were both for cash, and one offer was for more 23 than the other. Notwithstanding the fact that this 24 Court found the offers to be identical, and the fact

1 that one was for more money than the other, the 2 directors continued to recommend the lesser offer.

3 THE COURT: That was the White & Hill
4 offer.

5 MR. PAYSON: That's correct, your Honor.
6 The White & Hill offer was at some 23-1/2 million
7 dollars. Another group came in with a substantially 8 identical offer on paper, but for 27 million.

9 This is not a Gimbel vs. Signal case, 10 your Honor, where the sale of assets was approved by 11 the board of directors after a meeting of approximately 12 two hours, and where that sale was not contingent upon 13 shareholder approval. There was a serious question in 14 that case whether the board had an updated study of 15 proven oil reserves of the wholly owned subsidiary of 16 the Signal companies. Chancellor Quillen expressed 17 concern as to whether or not the board on its own 18 without shareholder approval could have fully evaluated 19 the complex oil reserves that were presented in that 20 case.

21 This case, your Honor, comes down to a 22 disclosure case. The proxy statement is some 76 pages
23 long supplemented with appendices. The proxy statement 24 has now been supplemented by direction of the board of

1 directors which gives the shareholders the complete 2 picture, all germane information with respect to the 3 merger.

4 Mr. Prickett really focuses on his 5 allegation that the directors, or that the proxy
6 material should have disclosed cash flow projections.
7 The SEC, as pointed out both in our brief and 8 Mr. Sparks' brief, has seriously questioned the use of 9 historical cash flow figures as being confusing, not 10 understandable by shareholders, and probably irrelevant.
11 In this case the Court will find at Page 39 of the 12 proxy statement a complete historical analysis of the 13 company's cash flow from 1975 through the first nine 14 months of 1980. It shows generally that for that 15 period the cash flow of the company has increased.
16 The proxy statement also advises the shareholders that 17 the company's net income per share by 1985 may well be 18 over $12 a share. There is no reason why an interested 19 stockholder cannot compare the projections as to net
20 earnings --

21 THE COURT: What page are you referring 22 to?

23 MR. PAYSON: On Page 39 there is a
24 consolidated statement of source and use of funds, and

1 it shows total from continuing operations, source of 2 funds, for example in 1975 -- and this is about six 3 lines down, your Honor -- total cash flow, although cash 4 flow is not in there, total from continuing operations, 5 $100,000,000. In 1976, $106,000,000. Going on to 6 1979, $162,000,000. And in the first three quarters 7 for 1980, $135,000,000.

8 In addition, at Page 3 of the proxy
9 statement is the statement: "The company's business 10 plan prepared in July 1980 contains projections which 11 were furnished to GL and by Salomon Brothers to other 12 potential business combination entities as referred to 13 below, and would indicate that its net income might 14 increase to approximately $153,000,000 in 1985."

15 It is speculation, but the company wanted 16 its shareholders to know what the projections were for 17 the next few years.

18 I would like to concentrate a little bit
19 on the meeting of January 26, 1981, which I attended.
20 At that meeting Mr. Prickett's -- or the parade of 21 horrors was recounted in detail to the directors.
22 The directors were advised that whether or not they 23 understood it at the September 20th meeting, in fact 24 Mr. Van Gorkom had gone to Mr. Pritzker with a $55 per

1 share proposal; that Mr. Pritzker had asked for 2 1.75 million shares at market, which was $37.25, but 3 that Mr. Van Gorkom had negotiated that figure to 4 1,000,000 shares at $38, not a matter of a few cents
5 as Mr. Prickett would suggest.

6 I don't have the time to go in detail
7 over what was gone through at the meeting. The Moore
8 affidavit is only eight pages long, and I respectfully 9 urge the Court to read that in detail so that it will 10 know exactly what and how carefully the board considere 11 for the recommendation that the Pritzker deal be 12 permitted to go to the shareholders, and that the 13 shareholders be permitted to decide their own fate.

14 Mr. Prickett has come in with the 15 affidavit of Duff and Phelps. We suggest strongly that 16 that report reflects a number massage and not an 17 objective evaluation of the company. It is not 18 contradicted by an expert hired by any of the defendant 19 but it is contradicted by the express and directed 20 test of the market done by Salomon Brothers. Over 21 100 major corporate entities and groups throughout the 22 United States were contacted. Not one suggested that 23 the million shares which has now been issued to a 24 Pitzker designee had any effect on their interest in

1 the company. Not one --

2 THE COURT: Those shares were issued on 3 January 28th, I gather.

4 MR. PAYSON: That's my understanding,
5 your Honor.

6 MR. SPARKS: That is correct.

7 MR. PAYSON: That transaction has been 8 closed.

9 Not one entity until KKR this past Monday
10 morning suggested that they didn't have sufficient time.
11 It comes with ill grace from KKR since it made a 12 proposal on December 2nd subject to financing, repre-13 sented that financing could be obtained in two or three 14 weeks, then withdrew the offer some three hours later.

15 This Court has --

16 THE COURT: Of course it's conceivable
17 that a better offer might come through before 18 February 10th.

19 MR. PAYSON: That is conceivable, your 20 Honor. It will be difficult to evaluate whether in 21 fact a more favorable offer has been received, but it 22 is possible, and whatever actions may be dictated by 23 such an offer will be undertaken.

24 This Court has repeatedly held that the

1 market is the real test evaluation and the only 2 objective gauge of value. In this case that applies 3 in two respects. In the first place, this stock has 4 never --

5 THE COURT: Well, I've held that on 6 several occasions, and I also have been reversed on 7 several occasions.

8 MR. PAYSON: I have never second guessed
9 the Court.

10 This Court and the Supreme Court have 11 said that the market value of stock is the primary 12 test in looking to the value of an ongoing industrial 13 concern. In this case the market value of Trans Union 14 stock prior to the announcement of the merger, or the 15 proposed merger, and since January 1, 1975, has never 16 been above $39.50 per share. In addition, the test of 17 the market done in connection with Salomon Brothers' 18 solicitation of offers is the best indication of whether 19 a price better than $55 per share can be found. It is 20 not a hired expert trying to convince this Court in a 21 brief affidavit that some figure other than that tested 22 by the market may be fair.

23 Mr. Prickett suggested that if the 24 Pritzker deal goes away GE may come back. That may be

1 possible. GE may come back with $57 which because of 2 antitrust problems and other problems may be received 3 by the stockholder six months from now with an interest
4 rate of 20 percent. We now have $55 per share in cash 5 in hand if, but only if the stockholders want it. And 6 in that respect, your Honor, it is clear in this case 7 that there is no controlling or majority stockholder.
8 Singer, Tanzer, Roland International simply have no
9 application in this proceeding. I know of no Delaware 10 decision where there has been an injunction entered 11 against an arm's length merger, or the vote on such a 12 merger, where there is no indication whatsoever of any 13 self dealing or control, and in this case the opposite 14 of self dealing applies because of the insiders' owner-15 ship of a substantial amount of stock, some 115,000 16 shares.

17 Why on earth would Mr. Van Gorkom approve 18 this deal in his own mind if he thought somewhere he 19 could get $5 more per share? That decision would cost 20 him $300,000. It makes no sense especially when it is 21 clear from the record that there is no commitment or 22 understanding between Mr. Pritzker and any entity which 23 he controls and any officer or director of Trans Union.

24 Let me add one more thing, your Honor:

1 The plaintiff also alleges, I think in 2 his amended complaint, that there are a number of 3 contacts which should have been more fully disclosed to 4 the shareholders. It is uniformly held that mere 5 contacts as opposed to firm offers need not be disclose 6 to shareholders because they might be in fact more 7 confusing than informative.

8 I call the Court's attention to Bucher
9 vs. Shumway, which appears at Federal Securities Law
10 Report, Paragraph 97, 142, recently affirmed per curiam 11 by the Second Circuit; Scott vs. Multi-Amp Corp., which 12 appears at 386 Fed. Supp., 44, and Elgin National 13 Industries vs. Chemitron decided by Judge Steel in 14 1969 which appears at 299 Fed. Supp., 367.

15 Finally, your Honor, in order to give 16 Mr. Sparks an opportunity to speak I would close with 17 the following:

18 The first paragraph of the conclusion in 19 the plaintiff's first brief states: "If the instant 20 motion is denied, the Pritzkers and Mr. Van Gorkom will 21 be permitted to carry through their merger plan."

22 I would restate that, your Honor, to 23 read as follows:

24 "If a majority of the shareholders of

1 Trans Union, having been first informed of all relevant
2 facts, approve the proposed merger, all stockholders 3 of Trans Union collectively will receive more than 4 $222,000,000 more than their stock has recently been 5 valued at in the open market. On the other hand, if 6 the proposed merger is enjoined at the behest of a 7 shareholder whose tax situation is at best aberrational, 8 and who actually may want TU's stock to decline in 9 value, all other stockholders may well be deprived of 10 an opportunity which will not appear again in the fore-11 seeable future."

12 We can guess, and we can speculate that 13 maybe somewhere out there is an entity or corporation 14 who might pay more at some time. The directors were 15 faced, and were faced on September 20th and at their 16 later meetings, and especially at the meeting on 17 January 26th, with whether or not the shareholders 18 should be given the opportunity to vote their own
19 destiny. That is all we're waiting for; the shareholder 20 vote. There is no reason to take that personal decision 21 away from the shareholders.

22 THE COURT: Thank you.

23 MR. PAYSON: Thank you, Chancellor.

24 THE COURT: Mr. Sparks, why do you think

1 this merger was proposed by Mr. Van Gorkom? The company
2 was apparently making money. There was no great urgency
3 apparently, although there are reasons for the merger
4 set forth in the proxy statement. Why do you think it 5 was recommended?

6 MR. SPARKS: Your Honor, I understand in 7 the record what Mr. Van Gorkom has said, and I think 8 it makes a lot of sense. On that issue he has said he 9 has stood by as well as other TU stockholders for years 10 and watched this stock trade at a price which at least 11 for the last six years has never gone above $40 a share.
12 Mr. Van Gorkom believed that in the hands of certain 13 types of companies, maybe companies who could afford 14 to pay for it, this company was more valuable than $40
15 a share, or the $37 a share which it had been trading 16 at or below in the year 1980. He therefore sought an 17 opportunity to get his stockholders what he thought 18 was something closer to and within the range of the 19 appropriate value for the stock of the company, and he 20 went to Mr. Pritzker, and in effect a deal was struck 21 subject to stockholder approval, subject to board 22 approval which sought to get for the stockholders what 23 Mr. Van Gorkom thought, what the board thought was 24 closer to what they ought to have in a range of a fair

1 price for this company. That, your Honor, is why, after 2 reading his testimony, I believe Mr. Van Gorkom went 3 to Mr. Pritzker when he did.

4 Your Honor, I am before the Court --

5 THE COURT: Well, apparently many of these 6 stockholders if this merger is consummated will be 7 required to pay large capital gains.

8 MR. SPARKS: Your Honor, Mr. Prickett said
9 that, but there is nothing in the record to support
10 that. Like any other cash merger, this transaction 11 will have varying impacts taxwise upon stockholders.
12 Mr. Smith's tax impact arises not actually from his own 13 ship of stock. A large portion of his tax impact and 14 his opposition to this deal arises from the fact that 15 15 years ago he sold half of his holdings in TU, Trans 16 Union, short, and he has deferred for 15 years through 17 a tax gimmick the payment of $215,000 in federal income 18 taxes. What is going to happen to Mr. Smith if this 19 transaction goes through is that the long and short 20 positions that his broker carries on 50,000 shares are 21 going to be liquidated, and he can no longer take 22 advantage of this tax gimmick. He's going to have to 23 pay a $215,000 tax bill on stock that he sold, 24 effectively sold 16, 17 or 18 years ago. The only other

1 stockholder that we know, your Honor, who is in that 2 position is the former partner of Mr. Smith, a
3 Mr. Lovelace, who at about the same time did the same
4 thing. He read in Fortune magazine about this tax 5 gimmick, sold the stock short, but kept the short 6 contract open, and pledged as security 50,000 shares.
7 And I'm speaking now of numbers of what Mr. Smith did,
8 50,000 shares of TU stock as collateral for that short 9 position. But in effect they removed themselves from 10 any economic risk with respect to those securities
11 because when the stock price went up calling for a loss 12 on the short, the long position became more valuable, 13 and vice versa. If the stock went down calling for a 14 loss on the long, the short became more valuable. It's 15 a perfect hedge.

16 THE COURT: Well, let's not waste time on 17 that.

18 MR. SPARKS: You're right, your Honor.
19 Let's move on.

20 I'm before the Court, your Honor, as the 21 representative of GL, New T Company, The Marmon Group 22 and Jay and Robert Pritzker, and the only claim in the 23 complaint against my clients is a single allegation 24 that they somehow fraudulently conspired with TU to

1 bring about the proposed merger. Yet not one fact has 2 been adduced in support of such a theory, and it has 3 been abandoned by the plaintiff.

4 For more than four months now GL has 5 stood by with substantially all its working capital and 6 credit committed to this transaction incurring not only 7 commitment fees, but being limited in its ability to 8 pursue other ventures. All this while Trans Union
9 sought to find a bid higher than offered by GL.

10 Finally the opportunity for which GL bargained to place
11 its $55 merger proposal before Trans Union stockholders 12 was approaching, and the only thing standing between 13 that opportunity for TU stockholders to speak upon the 14 proposed merger is this action in which one stockholder
15 with a peculiar tax problem seeks to have this Court 16 substitute his views with respect to the merger for 17 those of TU's directors and its stockholders.

18 First and foremost, your Honor -- and it
19 hasn't been mentioned here today -- but first and fore-20 most it's my view that this Court should focus upon 21 plaintiff's other inability to satisfy his burden of 22 proving an irreparable injury in this case which out-23 weighs that to TU's stockholders and to GL if that 24 stockholder meeting or the proposed merger is preliminaril

1 enjoined.

2 Your Honor, in 140 pages of briefing
3 plaintiff devotes exactly two pages to the irreparable 4 injury issue which is, of course, one of the two 5 conditions he must satisfy in order to have this Court
6 enjoin this merger, and that's because, your Honor, 7 just as he had nothing to say this morning, he had 8 nothing to say about that issue in his brief.

9 If a preliminary injunction issues in 10 this case, the status quo will not, and cannot be 11 maintained. To the contrary, Trans Union stockholders 12 will suffer an enormous injury, and GL will lose the 13 benefit of the bargain it struck five months ago with 14 TU. Why is this? This isn't just because of an idle 15 threat by Pritzker that he's going to abandon the 16 merger. It is because of a financial reality of this 17 transaction.

18 GL has a financing commitment for 19 $450,000,000 of the $688,000,000 purchase price. That 20 financing commitment was made in September and October.
21 It is at a 14 percent rate of interest, your Honor, and 22 it expires on March 31, 1981. If the merger is not 23 consummated by March 31st, that commitment will be lost.
24 Obviously at today's interest rates, if that commitment

1 could be replaced at all, it would be at much higher 2 rates.

3 Assume that it could be replaced, which 4 is doubtful, but assume that a commitment with interest 5 at the current prime rate of 20 percent could be 6 obtained to replace the lost March 31st commitment if 7 the merger is enjoined. Your Honor, the per annum
8 cost of the $450,000,000 loan, the per annum interest 9 cost would increase by $27,000,000 a year. With that 10 large added cost, the merger as a practical matter 11 would no longer be economically feasible for GL. And 12 since it is unlikely that a final injunction hearing 13 could be held, a decision rendered, and the merger 14 consummated by March 31st, a preliminary injunction by 15 force of economic fact would force GL to abandon the 16 merger, and that's what we're facing.

17 Your Honor, GL would thus have forever lost
18 the benefit of the favorable special purpose financing 19 which it had achieved, and would lose its good faith 20 arm's length contract to merge with Trans Union. More 21 important, or just as important -- and I don't think 22 the Court, incidentally, in the absence of any even 23 colorable claim against GL or the Pritzkers for wrong-
24 doing -- the Court must take into account their interes

1 as one contractual party in this transaction in 2 addition to the stockholders' interests. The stock-
3 holders, your Honor, are also the indirect beneficiarie
4 of GL's favorable financing because that's what lets 5 the deal go forward at this point in time. And they 6 would lose the enormous $220,000,000 premium offered 7 in the merger if an injunction is granted here with 8 absolutely no assurance that a comparable offer, or for 9 that matter any offer, will be forthcoming if this one 10 goes away.

11 Now, weighed against these enormous
12 losses to TU stockholders and the damage to GL we have 13 only plaintiff's speculation that a higher bid might be 14 forthcoming. Plaintiff himself has testified that he 15 believes TU's stock will go down by at least $10 a 16 share, which translates with the numbers we're dealing 17 with to $120,000,000 in gross figures if the merger is 18 abandoned.

19 Of course the real damage that plaintiff
20 perceives if the merger goes through has nothing to do
21 with the issues he raises in this case. As explained 22 in the briefs, for plaintiff it amounts to the fact 23 that the effectuation of the merger will cause him to 24 realize that $214,000 capital gain liability which he

1 incurred by reason of a $787,000 profit he made in the 2 early '60's on which he has never had to pay tax.
3 Moreover, if the merger is blocked, and the price of 4 TU stock goes down, which Mr. Smith hopes it will do
5 if the merger is blocked, he'll be able to shelter 6 $2,000,000, or approximately $2,000,000, of recent 7 capital gains sales he made on an orange grove by 8 liquidating his short position.

9 In short, the harm plaintiff sees in the 10 merger arises out of his peculiar tax planning problems 11 resulting from his sale of TU stock and the sale of an 12 orange grove, and has nothing to do with the interests 13 of TU stockholders, and it certainly is not the type of 14 harm that weighs at all against the enormous detriment 15 to TU stockholders and to GL if the preliminary 16 injunction is granted.

17 In short, your Honor, the Court need not 18 even reach the merits of what we have heard argued this 19 morning between Mr. Prickett and Mr. Payson under these 20 facts. Not only has plaintiff failed to meet the 21 irreparable injury requirement, but he has also failed 22 to show a reasonable probability of success on the 23 merits.

24 I will not review or go over the matters

1 which Mr. Payson so ably argued this morning. It is 2 clear that there have been thorough board consideration 3 and when the merger was presented on September 20th to 4 Trans Union's board, which is composed of leaders of 5 industry and persons and inside people very familiar 6 with the company, that board was as up to speed as it 7 possibly could have been. It had just been exposed one 8 month before to the five-year forecast and to the 9 Boston Consulting Group's study. It knew what its 10 company was about. It had the $55 offer before it, and 11 it was perfectly capable, and did make a decision that 12 that was an offer that should be accepted.

13 Then with the aid of Salomon Brothers,
14 which was spurred on by its tremendous incentive
15 contract, TU and Salomon continued a vigorous campaign 16 to find a higher bid, and they haven't found any.
17 Notwithstanding that, contrary to what Mr. Prickett
18 suggested, the merger agreement did not prevent TU's 19 board from accepting any offer, and did not prevent it 20 from changing its recommendation if it found such 21 other offer to be better than GL's.

22 There is no limit on the conditions that 23 any bidder may place before Trans Union in that merger 24 agreement, and a suggestion to the contrary by --

1 THE COURT: Because that had to be added
2 to the original agreement?

3 MR. SPARKS: Your Honor, the merger
4 agreement permits Trans Union to solicit other bids.
5 These are bids for the sale of all, or substantially 6 all, of the company, which is what we're talking about 7 here. These bids can come in in any form with whatever 8 conditions the bidder chooses to place upon them, and 9 Trans Union's board is then free to evaluate that 10 business, and to make a recommendation to its stock-11 holders as to whether the GL bid should be voted up or 12 voted down, and that right continues as of today.

13 The conditions that Mr. Prickett referred 14 to in his argument relate to the ability of Trans Union
15 to terminate this merger agreement and deny the stock-16 holders the right to consider the merger offer. Only 17 certain bids with certain limited conditions allow 18 Trans Union to say that this bid won't be voted on at 19 all by the stockholders. But any bid can come in, be 20 considered by Trans Union's board of directors, and 21 Trans Union can change its recommendation and say we 22 think this other bid is better, and, stockholders, we 23 think you ought to hold on and vote the GL bid down, 24 and they are free to do that under the merger contract.

1 And, your Honor, if another bid, firm bid, did come in,
2 and it was truly in fact better than the bid that GL 3 has made, there is no question that the GL bid would 4 lose.

5 We have contracted for the right to go 6 forward to the stockholders with our bid, and in a very 7 unusual contract we have subjected ourselves to the 8 risk over a four-month period while we have tied up our 9 credit and our capital that somebody else is going to 10 come in and outbid us. Now that we are getting down 11 close to the meeting date, one stockholder comes in 12 and says wait a minute. I've got tax problems, and I
13 want to get in the middle of that arm's length 14 contractual agreement. That's what we're looking at 15 here today.

16 This transaction and the price being 17 paid have had a double test in the market. This stock
18 has been traded on the New York Stock Exchange for year 19 I think it's since 1914. In the last six years, in an 20 issue with over 12,000,000 shares outstanding, the 21 price has never gone above $40 a share. Added to that 22 we have Salomon out there beating the bushes trying to 23 find a higher offer. They have not found one.

24 Your Honor, I don't believe this Court ha

1 really ever faced a situation clearer than this one, 2 or a circumstance more clear than this one where the 3 stock price being offered has been objective, where it 4 has been so objectively tested, and to lay against that 5 the Duff and Phelps report really should just have no
6 weight at all under those circumstances. I'm not going 7 to touch on that report, your Honor, other than to 8 point out that it has been thoroughly discredited in 9 light of that firm's conclusion just two and a half 10 years ago that the market accurately reflected the 11 value of a share of Trans Union stock in a report which 12 has been the subject of discovery and the subject of a 13 couple of affidavits filed by two Duff and Phelps
14 persons, the gentleman who testified and his superior, 15 who would seek to minimize the impact of that letter.
16 The fact of the matter is, your Honor, that it was an 17 analysis two and a half years ago where Trans Union was 18 the client in which Duff and Phelps started from the 19 market, analyzed the company, concluded that the 20 market was a fair indication of value, and then applied 21 a 35 percent discount to that because the stock was 22 restricted. And now two and a half years later they 23 come back and say that somehow the stock is worth $67.50
24 a share, which is higher than even those management

1 members at Trans Union, who have been seeking to 2 fashion a leverage buy-out, have suggested the company 3 stock was appropriately worth.

4 Moreover, your Honor, this is an arm's
5 length merger, and we have looked through the cases.
6 We haven't found a case in which this Court has enjoined 7 an arm's length merger. And of course in this type of 8 case plaintiff must show constructive fraud to prevail
9 on his claim that the $55 price is too low. Everything 10 in this case, every fact points in the other direction, 11 indicates that this $55 price at the time it was 12 offered, and today, is well within whatever range one 13 could conclude spans the reasonable price. It is 14 certainly not a price that no reasonable man could 15 conclude was fair or appropriate. Ten reasonable men 16 on Trans Union's board came out the other way. They 17 concluded it was within that range of fairness and 18 reasonableness, and we ask now for the opportunity to 19 have this transaction placed before Trans Union's 20 stockholders where they will have the same opportunity 21 to make their own investment decision with respect to 22 it.

23 THE COURT: What about the 20-day
24 provision of 251?

1 MR. SPARKS: Your Honor, 251 provides
2 that there shall be 20 days notice of the time, place 3 and purpose of a meeting of stockholders which is to 4 consider a merger. The original notice that went out 5 on January 21st, dated January 19th, for the notice of 6 special meeting of February 10, 1981, says: "A special
7 meeting of the stockholders of Trans Union Corporation
8 will be held at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, February 10, 1981, 9 for the following purposes:

10 "1. To consider and vote upon an agree-
11 ment and plan of merger pursuant to which New T Co., a 12 Delaware corporation, would be merged into Trans Union, 13 and each outstanding share of common stock of Trans 14 Union would be exchanged for $55 in cash, all as 15 described in the accompanying proxy statement and the 16 agreement and plan of merger and related agreements as 17 amended included a Appendix 1."

18 Your Honor, what I just read satisfies 19 the requirements of Section 251(c). It gives notice of 20 the time, place and the purpose of the meeting. And 21 for plaintiff to turn what TU has done on its head and 22 suggest that somehow the filing of supplemental proxy
23 material to give even more information to the plaintiff
24 and to the stockholders somehow requires an injunction

1 with respect to this meeting I find to be incredible.
2 Indeed I would think that this Court and any court 3 would wish to encourage companies to communicate as 4 fully as possible with respect to events and facts as 5 they become known and as they develop.

6 What Trans Union has done in its 7 supplemental disclosure, which I would urge your Honor 8 to read, and read carefully, is to literally put its 9 own stockholders in the board room, and far from being 10 a target for preliminary injunction, Trans Union should 11 be commended by this Court for the candor and thoroughness 12 of those disclosures.

13 In short, your Honor, plaintiff cannot 14 show either an irreparable injury which outweighs that 15 which is going to be suffered by GL, and suffered by 16 Trans Union stockholders if a preliminary injunction is 17 granted, nor can he show a reasonable probability of 18 success on the merits. As to irreparable injury, he 19 hasn't even tried, as we see it, to make such a showing.
20 For that reason alone, this Court should deny the 21 application for a preliminary injunction made on behalf 22 of Mr. Smith.

23 THE COURT: Thank you.

24 MR. PRICKETT: Your Honor, may I respond

1 briefly?

2 THE COURT: Yes.

3 MR. PRICKETT: I'll be summary in my 4 responses.

5 Mr. Payson begins by literary illusion.
6 He suggests that Mr. Van Gorkom is the villain, and 7 that his outside directors are his cronies. I think 8 he overexaggerates. I think Mr. Van Gorkom is a very 9 foolish man. I think he was motivated by the fear that 10 he was going to be kicked out of his office by insurgent 11 headed by Romans.

12 THE COURT: Well, he's compelled to 13 retire rather soon.

14 MR. PRICKETT: Yes. But he didn't want 15 to be put out by Romans and that group before he 16 retired. He far preferred to sell the company to the 17 Pritzkers, and honorably make a deal that looked good 18 to him. So on a Sunday afternoon, without talking to 19 anybody, this old man who is about to retire went out 20 and sold the company.

21 Now, I don't suggest that he's a villain.
22 I suggest he's a very foolish man who does a thing so 23 hastily and so ill conceived panicking, as he obviously 24 did, that the Young Turks were going to replace the old

1 man who had dominated the company so long.

2 Now, "cronies" is a little bit strong for 3 the characterization of the directors, but they were 4 pals of his. He nominated them. He sat on their board.
5 He played golf with them. They played golf with him.
6 He voted for their deals, and they voted for his, and 7 that's exactly what happened here.

8 Second, it's suggested that there was a 9 high premium. There is a premium, but it is nowhere 10 near the premium that the marketplace in a free 11 transaction has granted in comparable situations, and 12 there is a constant parade of big numbers that suggest 13 this and that, but it's not comparable, and it wasn't 14 fair. That is, if Van Gorkom had done it right, he 15 might have gotten $60 or $65, and then he would have 16 gotten a fair cash price. But a cash price wasn't 17 what his stockholders needed. What his stockholders 18 needed if this was going to be done, rather than letting 19 them share in the future of the company, was a tax-free 20 deal. But he didn't do that. He went around, and 21 before even thinking about this made a deal at his own 22 particular number before anybody could think about it.

23 It's suggested that the stockholders are 24 innocent stockholders. They are indeed, and they are

1 the owners of this business, and there's absolutely no 2 reason why because Mr. Van Gorkom wants a deal that he 3 thinks is a good deal to protect his own position that 4 they should be subjected to involuntary capital gains.

5 Now, it is suggested that Mr. Pritzker is 6 a Svengali. I think that's a little strong, but 7 nevertheless, he really did do a superb job of conning
8 this old man out of the company on a Sunday afternoon.
9 He not only got it at a super price, but he put a kicker 10 in there. He couldn't lose. He's going to get 11 $17,000,000 even if somebody buys it. So that I think 12 his powers of persuasion are monumental, and he's gotten 13 a superb deal at the cost of the stockholders.

14 It is suggested that this case is a 15 disclosure case. It is a disclosure case, and but for 16 our discovery, all of this sordid history would never 17 have come out. But it hasn't come out fully yet. There 18 is still not full disclosure.

19 It is also suggested that this is not a 20 Thomas case. It is a Thomas case. This board has 21 gotten itself into a contractual corner where it can't 22 consider another offer at this point. It's got to go 23 forward with Pritzker, and that's precisely what 24 happened in Thomas, and it's precisely what the Court

1 did for the stockholders there. It gave them an 2 opportunity to get a fair offer.

3 It's suggested this is not a Gimbel case.
4 Well, it's not a sale of assets case obviously. The 5 relevance of Gimbel is that there the board, faced with 6 a deal of similar dimensions and with far more informa-
7 tion -- at least in Gimbel they had some advance
8 warning, and they were told what they were going to do.
9 There this Court said there is not that degree of 10 prudence and consideration that a transaction of this 11 size merits. The stockholders are entitled to the 12 considered judgment of the directors, not simply hugger-13 musher rush into that.

14 That's the basic problem here, your Honor.
15 The stockholders have never had the benefit of a 16 considered judgment by the board. They simply rubber 17 stamped it, and then at every stage they have played 18 pick-up; that is, they have tried to put a Band-Aid 19 on each situation culminating when they assembled 20 counsel, all the counsel present in this room for GL, 21 and they've tried to bootstrap themselves into saying 22 well, we've looked at it all now. It's all come out, 23 and we ratify it all. You can't do that, your Honor.

24 The suggestion that 251 does not encompass

1 giving the stockholders fair notice of what is done
2 simply won't wash. You've got to give them 20 days 3 notice, and when you give them a proxy statement, if 4 you accept Mr. Payson's or Mr. Sparks' argument, I 5 suppose what you could do is give notice, and then on 6 the 19th day put out a proxy statement and say they 7 have had fair notice because technically we have 8 complied with the law. Condec doesn't say that. It
9 says you can't utilize the corporate machinery to rig 10 the thing, and particularly with stockholders you've 11 got to be fair and candid, and you can't monkey around 12 issuing proxy statements and holding board meetings at 13 the last minute, and then send out proxy statements to 14 the stockholders that attempt to correct all the past 15 defalcations.

16 Now, there is a suggestion that this was 17 an arm's length negotiation, that this is an arm's length 18 merger. That is precisely what it is not, and that is 19 the basic complaint.

20 This deal was struck in a home on a 21 Sunday afternoon. It wasn't completely struck. The 22 terms got worse during the week, but it wasn't arm's 23 length. Arm's length means two equals who, well advised 24 and with full information, trade off back and forth, and

1 it is not a secret deal made by a scared senior 2 executive and a financier who is interested in taking 3 over a company who makes a deal privately, doesn't 4 disclose it to anybody. That's not arm's length at 5 all, and that's not what this deal is. That was 6 compounded by the fact that when they made this deal, 7 they made it in such a way -- I don't think Mr. Van Gork
8 ever realized that -- probably doesn't even realize it 9 now -- that the deal was made in such a way that nobody, 10 but nobody, could get in after the Pritzkers were there.
11 They were on top of it, and sure, they could let any-12 body else come in, but the conditions in the thing made 13 it impossible for anybody else effectively to make any 14 other bid. So that in the first place, it wasn't an 15 arm's length transaction, and secondly, everybody was 16 foreclosed from coming in.

17 So we haven't had any bidding, your Honor.
18 We have had a deal that was closed on Sunday the 13th, 19 ratified on Sunday the 20th, and no real opportunity 20 for the market free and open, to consider what TU was 21 really worth. The deal closed then, and the market 22 knows full well that there is no possibility of getting 23 in there and making a better offer for their stock, and 24 GE said so. They recognized what had happened.

1 Now, there is talk about the tax
2 situation. It's not directly relevant, but it is 3 suggested that everybody's tax situation is the same.
4 The directors all knew that this transaction would 5 involve disastrous capital gains for all shareholders 6 because they are going to pay capital gains on between 7 -- Suppose you bought at 37, and this deal goes through.
8 You pay capital gains at 55. But they knew more than 9 that. They knew that many shareholders had gotten 10 their shares in tax-free considerations. Not Mr. Smith 11 alone, but a lot of them. So they knew it was for 12 worth.

13 THE COURT: You eventually have to pay
14 capital gains. You can't go on putting it off forever.

15 MR. PRICKETT: That's correct. But there 16 is no reason --

17 THE COURT: And it's not as much as 18 ordinary income tax.

19 MR. PRICKETT: Mercifully they didn't get 20 us into that kind of a deal.

21 But there is no reason why just because 22 on a Sunday afternoon Mr. Van Gorkom stops around to see 23 his friend, that the stockholders should then be put 24 in a deal where they are going to have to pay capital

1 gains. It's worse for some than others.

2 But if we are mentioning taxes, you've 3 got to see that there is a disparity here because so
4 far as the Pritzkers are concerned, this thing is a 5 sweetheart. It ends up $17,000,000 tax-free for them.
6 So that the stockholders are going to get c-capital gains 7 All of them are going to get some. Some worse. But 8 the Pritzkers are going to end up $17,000,000 richer if 9 somebody else comes in tax-free. That is a considera-10 tion that has led courts to enjoin mergers.

11 Now, it is suggested that we have 12 abandoned claims against GL. We have not by any means.
13 But what we are presenting here is a motion for 14 preliminary injunction. When and if the time comes, 15 we'll sort out the claims against GL, but we've not 16 abandoned them by any means.

17 Now let me close by suggesting that what 18 is before the Court, as I said at the outset, is the 19 motion for preliminary injunction. We are now not even 20 into February, and while I don't suggest to the Court 21 that it take on the burden of setting a trial date now, 22 this Court has always recognized the necessity of the 23 situation, and if necessary, the matter can be decided 24 as other matters of equal importance have been. The

1 record is full. We have taken a lot of discovery, and 2 we are ready for trial. We will try this case anytime
3 so that it can be decided finally, promptly. And we 4 have at least until March 31, 1981, before the Pritzkers 5 favorable financing flies away. But that is not the 6 determinative thing, your Honor. The question is 7 whether the law of Delaware has been complied with, and 8 we suggest that on this record it has not.

9 Now, I knew that somebody would attempt 10 to make a little bit of hay out of the Duff and Phelps 11 report of 1978. Your Honor, I also urge you to look at 12 that because the two reports are perfectly consistent.
13 They are directed to different objectives, and it's 14 fundamental, and perhaps the defendants don't under-15 stand it.

16 The market price of TU's stock has been 17 37, 38 over the last couple of years. Duff and Phelps 18 was asked what is a proper discount for lettered stock, 19 and they said about 35 percent, which would give a 20 figure of $20 for that stock figuring the discount.
21 But that's not the question here. Everybody agrees 22 that TU was trading about 37 to 38. It's what is the 23 proper price when you're buying 100 percent of the 24 stock, and what will the marketplace give for that.

1 And Duff and Phelps addressed itself to determining 2 what was a proper merger price, and that price is not 3 $55 that was arbitrarily selected on a Sunday afternoon.
4 It is a price which free of this secret deal the market-5 place will pay for TU when it doesn't have the 6 restrictions and conditions that are imposed by the 7 Pritzker merger and it has full knowledge and informa-
8 tion of the fact that this engine of cash, this cash 9 cow, is on the verge of really realizing a tremendous 10 economic growth. And it is for that reason that this 11 deal, though it was not an arm's length deal, should be 12 enjoined. It should be preliminarily enjoined, and if 13 we go to trial, it will be firmly and completely 14 enjoined so that the stockholders of TU get a fair 15 shake on what is one to them in connection with their 16 company. That is, that they be allowed to remain as 17 shareholders rather than being arbitrarily cashed out 18 in a cash-out merger, or if there is to be a merger, 19 the merger is one that does not visit upon them the 20 penalty of a catastrophic capital gains tax.

21 Your Honor, we think this case is clearly 22 one in which the Court of Chancery will exercise its 23 demonstrated power and demonstrated regard for the 24 stockholders of a Delaware corporation. We ask,

1 therefore, that the Court issue a preliminary injunction 2 against the proposed meeting of stockholders on 3 February 10, 1981, and the consummation of that merger.

4 THE COURT: Thank you. I'll take the 5 application under advisement, and decide it promptly.

6 Thank you.
